第二节 书面表达 (满分 25 分) One possible version:

Hello, everyone,

I'm honored to stand here to tell you something about my school life in the past two months.
Our school is very beautiful with a woody garden, where we can take a walk, breathing the fresh air and enjoying the pleasant scenery. The advanced equipment in the classroom is just brilliant and it helps our teachers make their classes lively and interesting. My classmates are so excellent and diligent that I have to work extremely hard to keep up with them. Fortunately, my teachers and classmates are all friendly and enthusiastic. I have already made several new friends here.

However, the food in the cafeteria is very poor and I hope it can get improved. Besides, we are extremely busy doing homework every day. How I wish we could have more time for physical exercise! (116 words)

Thank you!

听力材料:

(Text 1) W: I'd like to have a day off, if I may.

M: I'd rather you didn't, because there is too much work to do in the office.

(Text 2) M: Excuse me. What time is it, please?

W: It's half past four according to my watch, but it gains five minutes.

(Text 3) W: I wish I hadn't bought the air conditioner.

M: Pity you didn't think of that before you bought it. If only you listened to me.

(Text 4) W: Don't you have any good news?

M: No. Yesterday I had to stay after school because I was talking during my biology teacher's class.

(Text 5)

M: Hello, Mary! This is Dame Morrison from the office. I'm calling to see how Tom is doing today.

W: Oh, hello! Mr Morrison. The doctor said he'd be able to go back to work tomorrow.

M: Please tell him there is no hurry. I've had David Johnson take his work for the time being.

(Text 6) W: Hello!

M: Is that 103-5647?

W: Yes, it is.

M: I'm calling about the flat.

W: Yes?

M: Where is it?

W: It's in the center of the town.

M: Is it on a busy road?

W: Yes, it is. But it's opposite a park.

M: Which floor is it on?

W: The sixth floor. It has a lovely view.

M: How many bedrooms does it have?

W: It has two bedrooms and one bathroom.

M: Is the living room big?

W: No, it's small, but it has a large kitchen.

M: It sounds nice. How much is the rent?

W: 30 pounds a week.

M: Umm. When can I see it?

W: This afternoon, if you like.

M: Fine. See you about four, then. Goodbye!

W: Goodbye!

(Text 7) M: Now some doctors are strongly encouraging arm exercises.

W: Arm exercises? Is that because arms are too fat or too soft?

M: Actually that's not the main reason. They say that arm exercises can make you physically healthy.

W: But I was told that arm exercises could raise your blood pressure.

M: Yes, but the article I read suggests some ways to make up for that.

W: Really? How?

M: By adding leg exercises, so that the arms don't do all the work.

W: And in return I'm sure that there's a good chance of losing weight.

M: Sounds right to me.

W: So what exercises do the experts suggest?

M: They mentioned quite a few exercises, but one of the more popular ones is cycling.

W: Good. I will try that.

(Text 8)

M: Are you going to have a holiday this year, Mrs Young?

W: Yes, we are thinking of visiting my brother Fred, who's a farmer.

M: Farming's a very nice job, although farmers have to work hard. They have to get up at five in the morning.

W: Well, John, as a doctor, you're quite used to getting up in the night. Well, as a matter of fact, I have just received a letter from Fred. Will you please turn the light on? The daylight isn't good enough for reading.

M: OK.

W: Fred says here that his corn is ready for harvest. And he's thinking of buying some more fields next year.

M: Oh, he must be doing well.

W: Oh, yes, I think he is. He's proud of having the largest farm in Kent.

M: I expect you're looking forward to seeing him.

W: Yes, and I shall have some outdoor exercise.

M: You know, when I was young, I was quite good at ploughing.

W: Last time I was at my brother's, I once tried my hand at milking a cow. The result was terrible! I'll never forget the pitiful look on that cow's face!

(Text 9)

M: Miss Dermott, let me ask you straight away. Do you think, within a few years, many people could work at home instead of working in offices?

W: Oh, yes. It's happening now. You see, the communication industry has made much progress in the last ten years.

M: And how do these people manage to work? I mean, what equipment do they have at home?

W: Well, they have a television set, a computer, a printer and a telephone to connect with other computers.

M: Oh, I see. Surely there are some advantages in being able to work at home.

W: Yes. Working at home, people don't have to spend a lot of time getting to and from their work places. The rush hours, as everyone knows, are the worst times of day to travel. Millions of people spend their working lives getting up early to avoid the rush hours.

M: Ah yes, I see. What do you think about the conditions of home-workers?

W: Oh, let me tell you what might happen. In the future a British firm in London, for example, might employ clerks in Belfast, or a Paris company could have their secretaries in Spain, and then just use a telephone to call around for the work.

(Text 10)

There are two main reasons why the temperature of the air is always changing. One reason is that the air around you moves in from somewhere else. Air usually moves in large bodies called air masses. Some air masses move in from the north. These air masses usually have colder air that causes the temperature to drop. Air masses also move in from the south. They usually have warmer air that causes the temperature to rise.

Temperature changes during the day or night can be great or small. This depends partly on how many clouds are in the sky. When there are many clouds during the night, they act like the covers on your bed. They blanket the earth and keep the air from losing much of its heat. The temperature usually does not drop much during such the night. When there are many clouds during the day, some of the sun's energy will not reach the earth and the temperature usually does not rise much on such a day.
